

Unit 1.

1.

Confucius pays close attention to human reality as well as tries to answer mystical questions related to gods and spirits.

try to avoid.

A.T

☒ B.F

2. Confucius focuses more on human affairs than on nature.

☒ A.T

B.F

3. According to Confucianism, the starting point of all relationships is ritual propriety.

family reverence.

A.T

☒ B.F

4. The most important connotation of filial piety is love and obedience.

true feelings of love and reverence.

A.T

☒ B.F

5. The ultimate goal of Confucius is to restore the Zhou Dynasty.

great cultural tradition.

A.T

☒ B.F

6.

The Five Constant Virtues of Confucianism are benevolence, righteousness, filial piety, wisdom, and trustworthiness and reliability.

propriety

A.T

☒ B.F

7.

The Analects, a book about Confucius's words and deeds, was written by Confucius himself.

by his students

A.T

☒ B.F

8.

According to Confucius, ren is not realized completely until universal love is created.

☒ A.T

☐ B.F

9. According to Confucianism, filial piety is the essence and ren is the form.

A.T

☒ B.F

10.

Confucius emphasized li in order to preserve social order, stability and harmony.

☒ A.T

☐ B.F

Unit 2.

1. Laozi's thinking through oppositions can be exemplified by water.

☒ A.T
☐ B.F

2. The ancient Chinese's philosophical view of time and space is linear, cyclical.

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

3. Laozi's view of naturalness refers to the physical natural surroundings of human beings.

natural and original state of beings

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

4. Being and non-being are mutually dependent even though they emerge from different sources.

same.

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

5. The more the Dao is discussed, the closer we get to its essence of constancy.

further.

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

6. Laozi was the founder of Daoism which is regarded as the indigenous religion of China.

Zhang Daolin,

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

7. Dao De Jing is believed to be penned and compiled by Laozi.

☒ A.T
☐ B.F

8. Dao is the origin of everything and the law by which all things function in the universe.

A.T
B.F

9. The movement of Dao is characterized by yin and yang reversion.

A.T
B.F

10.

Laozi uses two concepts, being and non-being,
non-action and non-contention, to support the idea that Dao is beyond words.

follow nature and be harmonious

A.T
B.F

Unit 3.

1. The writing style of cursive script usually appears in letters and daily life writing.

running

A.T.
B.F.

2. Clerical script is the most ancient calligraphic style.

oracle bone inscriptions

A.T.
B.F.

3. The evolution of Chinese characters can be grouped into six stages along the development.

A.T.
B.F.

4. 80 percent of all characters in modern Chinese are self-explanatory characters.

picto-phonetic-

A.T.
B.F.

5. Radicals are the smallest unit of a Chinese character.

strokes

A.T.
B.F.

6. Chinese characters are a combination of pronunciation, form and meaning.

A.T.
B.F.

7. The Chinese character “森” is a picto-phonetic character.

ideographic.

A.T.
B.F.

- 8.

The formation of clerical script is a turning point in the evolution of Chinese characters.

A.T.
B.F.

9、

Official script features standard strokes, rigorous rules and a slow speed of writing.

Formal script

A.T

B.F

10、

Radicals can be classified into two categories, pictographic ones and phonetic ones.

Semantic.

A.T

B.F

Unit 4.

1. Chinese lunar calendar can be traced back to the Tang Dynasty.

Xia Shang

A.T

☒ B.F

2. Chinese lunar calendar is based purely on the movement and cycles of the moon.

four seasons

A.T

☒ B.F

3. Chinese lunar calendar determines the dates for Chinese festivals.

many

A.T

☒ B.F

4.

Traditionally, the Spring Festival is celebrated from the Eve of the Lunar New Year to the Lantern Festival.

the day before

A.T

☒ B.F

5.

In China, the solar calendar is used for day-to-day activities, business affairs and public holidays.

A.T

☒ B.F

6.

The Mid-autumn Festival has a long history of at least 1,000 years and can be traced back to moon worship in the Tang Dynasty.

Zhou

A.T

☒ B.F

7.

The Mid-autumn Festival is an inherited custom from the moon-worshipping sacrificial ceremony.

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

8、

To the Chinese people, the full moon is a symbol of family reunion, happiness and prosperity.

perfection

A.T

☒ B.F

9、

Red is the main color for the Spring Festival because Chinese people believe red symbolizes good luck and reproduction.

happiness

A.T

☒ B.F

10、

Traditional Chinese festivals have become one of the strongest bonds enhancing the cultural identity and national pride.

☐ A.T
☒ B.F

Unit 5

1. Those living in frigid climates prefer hot food.

enjoy having garlic.

A.T

☒ B.F

- 2.

Mongolians' act of "asking the guest and then slaughtering the sheep" is intended to show their hospitality.

respect for guests.

A.T

☒ B.F

- 3.

Tibetans prefer to eat the meat of odd-toed hoofed animals such as beef and lamb.

artiodactyls

A.T

☒ B.F

- 4.

According to the Chinese philosophy of yin and yang, boiling makes food more yin and frying makes it more yang.

☒ A.T

B.F

- 5.

Yellow Emperor's Classic of Internal Medicine is the first book to describe yin-yang balance in food.

medicinal diet.

A.T

☒ B.F

- 6.

Guests should observe the same customs as the hosts do when drinking kumiss at a Mongolian house.

dip the tip of his or her middle fingers into the kumiss

A.T

B.F.

7. A Tibetan family's wealth depends on the amount of meat and milk it owns.
grain storage.

A.T.
B.F.

8. The Hui people eat only the meat of animals which are slaughtered.

A.T.
B.F.

9.
The "five tastes" refer to sweetness, sourness, bitterness, pungency and saltiness.

A.T.
B.F.

10. Freshness is crucial to harmonious tastes in cooking.

Huoshou.

A.T.
B.F.

Unit 6.

1.

In traditional Chinese weddings, the letter of betrothal serves as the marriage certificate.
marriage.

A.T

☒ B.F.

2.

The right order of the Six Rites in a traditional Chinese wedding is nacai, wenming, nazheng, naji, qingqi and qinying.

A.T

☒ B.F.

3.

According to The Book of Rites, the main purpose of wenming is to ask for the girl's Eight Characters of Birth.

who the girl's mother is

A.T

☒ B.F.

4. The rite of miaojian reflects the Chinese people's consciousness of family.
clan.

A.T

☒ B.F.

5.

In Chinese tradition, the wedding ceremonies usually end with the ritual of returning to the bride's parents' home.

A.T

☒ B.F.

6.

A bride price, along with the letter of betrothal and the letter of gift list will be presented to the girl's parents in nazheng.

A.T

~~6.~~
7. Naji is a rite in which an auspicious wedding date is set.

Qingqi

A.T
B.F

8. The special gift in the rites of nacai (and wenming) is a goose.

A.T
B.F

9.
According to The Book of Rites, the bride wouldn't be regarded as a legal wife until after the ritual of miaojian.

A.T
B.F

10.
Nazheng is a very important rite for it marks the real beginning of the wedding preparation.

A.T
B.F

Unit 7.

1. The origin of Chinese garments can be traced back to the late Neolithic age.

Paleolithic.

A.T

☒ B.F.

2. One typical feature of cheongsam is its high collar.

stand-up.

A.T

☒ B.F.

3. The most significant changes in garment style took place in the Han Dynasty.

Qing

A.T

☒ B.F.

4.

There are two basic forms of traditional Chinese garments; one is the upper and lower garments and the other the one-piece gown-style garment.

☒ A.T

B.F

5. The overcoat beizi was typical of the Han women in the Song Dynasty.

☒ A.T

B.F

6.

The overall characteristics of Chinese garments can be summarized as bright colors, refined artisanship, and ornate details.

☒ A.T

B.F

7. The front piece of the traditional Chinese cheongsam has a symmetrical style.

asymmetrical

A.T

☒ B.F.

8.

The knot button of the traditional Chinese cheongsam is based on traditional Chinese knotting handicraft.

A.T

B.F

9、

The primitives living in Zhoukoudian wore body ornaments ~~only~~ for aesthetic concerns.

& a means of protection against evil.

A.T

B.F

10、 The rules on Chinese garments and ornaments started taking shape in the Han Dynasty.

Zhou.

A.T

B.F

Unit 8.

1.

Chinese crafts root in the unique geographic location of China and its marine culture since China possesses a long coastline.

farming

A.T

B.F

2.

Skills of less practical value were restrained from excessive development in ancient times.

A.T

B.F

3.

The idea of "being people-oriented" is demonstrated in the principle of "to attain practical use and to benefit man".

to value life and to use objects

A.T

B.F

4.

One of the Daoist School ideas is "to convey truth in writings", which imposed influence on the guidelines of traditional Chinese crafts.

Confucian.

A.T

B.F

5.

The Ming and Qing dynasties were the heyday of paper cutting when the craft showed great maturity.

A.T

B.F

6.

Traditional Chinese crafts stress practical use and complexity, having the wisdom of fitting in with agricultural civilization.

simplicity

A.T

☒ B.F.

7.

"To follow nature in an ingenious way" means that workmanship should be improved by learning from nature.

inspiration should be drawn from nature.

A.T

☒ B.F.

8. The origin of Chinese paper cutting can be credited to the invention of paper.

6th century

A.T

☒ B.F.

9. Of all folk arts, paper cutting is the most participative by common people.

☒ A.T

B.F

10.

Chinese paper cutting plays an active role in big and important festivals as well as in rites and ceremonies.

☒ A.T

B.F

Unit 9.

1.

The Forbidden City is ranked as the highest technical and artistic achievement of Chinese architecture.

A.T

B.F

masterpieces in the development of imperial palace architecture

2.

The architectural layout of the Forbidden City features the Outer Court in the front and the Inner Court in the rear.

A.T

B.F

3. The Hall of Central Harmony is the most important ceremonial center of imperial power.

Supreme

A.T

B.F

4. The architectural layout of the Forbidden City involves four directions: front, rear, left and right.

five center

A.T

B.F

5. The Six Eastern Palaces and the Six Western Palaces are on the Central Axis of Beijing.

not

A.T

B.F

6.

The Hall of Supreme Harmony is the only one building in China which has 9 mythological animals on the eaves.

10.

A.T

B.F

7.

During the five centuries after its construction, the Forbidden City witnessed the enthronement of 10 Ming emperors and 14 Qing emperors.

14.

10.

A.T

B.F

8.

The Hall of Preserving Harmony functioned as the site for the announcement of the result of imperial examinations.

Supreme.

A.T

B.F

9. The design of the central axis is based on the book, Records of Construction.

~~the~~ The Book of Changes

A.T

B.F

10.

The double-eaved hip roof of the Hall of Supreme Harmony ranks highest in architectural hierarchy of the ancient Chinese society.

A.T

B.F

Unit 10.

1.

The total number of dragon ornaments in the Forbidden City is an odd number to show the yang characteristic of the dragon.
even balance.

A.T

☒ B.F

2. The Eight Trigrams correlates with natural phenomena.

☒ A.T

B.F

3. There are four forms of yin and yang: great yin, lesser yin, lesser yang and great yang.

☒ A.T

B.F

4.

The architectural wisdom of Chinese people can be shown by the transporting of nanmu and a huge marble slab, the manufacturing of golden bricks and the reconstruction of the Hall of Supreme Harmony.

☒ A.T

B.F

5.

The three great halls of the Outer Court are arranged in the shape of the Qian Trigram while the three rear palaces of the Inner Court are arranged in the shape of the Kun Trigram.

A.T

☒ B.F

Both arranged in Qian Trigram.

6. The Palace of Heavenly Purity can be viewed as lesser yang as it has the word "heaven" in it.

yin.

A.T

☒ B.F

7. All the gates in the Forbidden City have 81 nails on their doors.

except Donghuanmen.

A.T

☒ B.F

8. The Kun Trigram is composed of three unbroken lines.

broken.

A.T
B.F.

9、 The Five Elements are reflected in the Forbidden City mainly through the construction materials.

colour

A.T
B.F.

10、 Both the Hall of Union and the Hall of Central Harmony integrate yin and yang.

A.T.
B.F.

Unit 11

1. In Peking Opera singing is as important as performance.

more important than

A.T
B.F

- 2.

At an early date in the Qing period, audiences paid not only for the tea but also for the opera they watched in the "tea courtyard".

only for the tea.

A.T
B.F

- 3.

The Qianmen Gate Tower area, where Peking Opera grew and thrived, was a cradle of folk culture in Beijing.

A.T
B.F

- 4.

Peking Opera is called the mother of Chinese operas.

Kunqu.

A.T
B.F

- 5.

Actors playing jing usually put on facial makeup and a red one represents bravery and pride.

uprightness and loyalty

A.T
B.F

- 6.

During the early stage of xiyuanzi, posters were pasted at the gate to promote the evening's show.

stage properties of the evening show.

A.T
B.F

7.

The cultural elements contained in Peking Opera include attractive stories, beautiful paintings and costumes, graceful gestures and martial arts.

A.T
B.F

8.

Chinese operas, ancient Greek drama, and Sanskrit drama are considered three ancient dramas in the world.

A.T
B.F

9.

In Peking Opera, xiaosheng is given priority in many programs and laosheng is relatively obscure.

A.T
B.F

10.

Chou is the ~~least~~ important role in Peking Opera and often leaves little impression on the audience.

A.T
B.F

The first to go to the stage.

Unit 12

1. The key to understand traditional Chinese medicine is the awareness of analogy.

☒ A.T.
☐ B.F.

2.

The thinking way based on interaction and response is of dual nature, leading to either sorcery or science.

☒ A.T.
☐ B.F.

3. According to the four key principles of TCM healthy diet is the best cure.

prevention.

☐ A.T.
☒ B.F.

4. Each and every TCM modality is based on meridians.

Various

☐ A.T.
☒ B.F.

5.

The common treatments in TCM include acupuncture, message, scraping therapy, classical herbal therapy and eating for healing.

acupressure, Qigong.

☐ A.T.
☒ B.F.

6.

According to the theory of zangxiang, the functions of the viscera are compared to the system of social classes.

court

☐ A.T.
☒ B.F.

7.

In Yellow Emperor's Classic of Internal Medicine, the idea of cultivating health in four seasons was influenced by Confucianism.

Daoism.

A.T
B.F.

8.

At the most basic and deep level, TCM treatment seeks to balance yin and yang in each person.

A.T
B.F.

9.

Since TCM doctors perceive analogies by intuition and sense, the charm in TCM is perceivable and expressible.

unn~.

A.T
B.F.

10.

TCM is different from modern medicine in means of diagnosis, treatment, composition of drugs and prescriptions.

A.T
B.F.

Unit 13

1. Traditional Chinese painting is fundamentally a realistic art form.
(F) ... an abstract art form.
2. The Chinese like to say they “read” a painting, which means they appreciate the content of a painting while enjoying its physical beauty.
(F) ...and enjoy its spiritual meanings.
3. According to Guo Xi, a landscape should be workable, visible, accessible and livable.
(F) ... walkable...
4. The earliest Chinese paintings were found on bronze ware.
(F) ... on pottery pieces.
5. “Along the River During the Qingming Festival” is a typical example of folk painting.
(F) ... of imperial painting.
6. The earliest Chinese paintings were found on chinaware.
(F) ...on pottery pieces in the late period of Neolithic Age.
7. The conception of remoteness in height, in depth, and in horizon implies the thought of rushi and chushi. (T)
8. During the Tang Dynasty, painters began to write poems on their paintings, thus integrating poetry, calligraphy and painting together.
(F) During the Song Dynasty...
9. The Eight Eccentrics of Yangzhou refers to eight individual painters in the Qing Dynasty.
(F) ... to a group of painters who had strong personal characters, adopted grotesque styles in painting and stressed the expression of their thoughts.
10. Traditional Chinese paintings can be classified into different categories by color, painting techniques, theme, or the painter’s identity. (T)